Riverina Primary Cross Country Carnival

On Thursday 11th June the Coolamon/Ardlethan PSSA Cross Country team travelled to Gundagai for the Riverina Primary Cross Country Carnival. This was the first time that the Primary Cross Country Carnival had been held at Gundagai so the competitors were both excited and nervous to see what the new track would bring. Nine Ardlethan Central School students were representing our Coolamon/Ardlethan PSSA at this carnival. Max Collis and James Smith in the 8 & 9 Years Boys 2km Event, Jo Bray in the 8 & 9 Years Girls 2Km Event, Broc Carnie in the 10 Years Boys 2km Event, Tyler Carnie, Nate Doyle and Jack Hawthorne in the 11 Years Boys 3 km Event and Mikayla Arnall & Emma Morris in the 11 years Girls 3km Event.

The students began the day by walking the track and were pleased to find that it was a mainly flat course. The cows that were in the area inspired them to keep running fast but to also watch where they stepped!

Congratulations to all the students who competed; each event was very competitive and our students ran with enthusiasm and determination. Their faces at the finish line certainly showed how hard they had tried.

Thank you to our wonderful parents Jason Myers, Paul Bray, Lorraine Carnie, Sally Collis, Renee Doyle, Kate Hawthorne, Katrina Morris, Amy and Mick Smith for transporting and supporting our students in their events. Thank you also to Mrs Leonie Stevenson (Beckom Public School) who was the Coolamon/Ardlethan Team Manager.

Year 7 & 8 Debating

On the 11th of June, Ardlethan Central School’s Year 7 and 8 students Hannah Scarlett, Leila Verney, Oscar Day and Jordan debated with the team at Narrandera High School. Our school was on the affirmative team, arguing that “we should accept more migrants”. The debate showed excellent confidence and capability from all students, with Oscar Day receiving a special mention from the adjudicator for how well he rebutted the opposing team. After much deliberation from the adjudicator (as it was so close), we were determined the winners of that round.

We all had a wonderful day, the students all learnt a lot from the adjudicator who gave great feedback to them, they witnessed some great techniques used by the opposing team and we also had some fun in between.

I would like to congratulate and thank all of the students for their hard work and for representing our school proudly. They demonstrated excellent sportsmanship and great debating techniques in this, their first round of debating. I wish them all the best in their following rounds.

SMALL SCHOOLS ACHIEVING BIG THINGS!

This week the PSSA tennis team consisting of Norm Haeusler, Jake Bourchier, Jane Haeusler and Paige Kenny, all from Barellan Central School, played in the Riverina final of the PSSA Tennis Knockout against Griffith Small Schools, consisting of players from Weethalle, Tharbogang and Goolgowi. For both finalists to come from small schools within the Riverina is an amazing achievement and a prime example of “small schools achieving big things!”

Barellan seemed a fitting host to the big day, famous for ‘The Big Tennis Racquet,’ and even more famous for its ties to Evonne Goolagong. As the kids hit up against the training wall, now named in her honour, it provided a wealth of inspiration for the kids competing and some nostalgia for the older generations. The high level of tennis reaffirmed the array of sporting talent produced in the Riverina.

The standard of tennis was very high and players were supported by many parents and community members from Barellan, Griffith and surrounding towns as well as Cheryl Rawle, tennis coach from Griffith who coaches many of the players and has been involved in teaching and promoting tennis to children in the Riverina for many generations.

Ardlethan/Barellan defeated Griffith small schools 5 sets to 3, however the difference was only 8 games, indicating the closeness of the competition. Both boys were successful in their singles matches; Norm 6-0, Jake 6-2. Jane won her singles match 6-4 while Paige, despite playing some great tennis was defeated. The boys won their doubles match 6-0, however the Griffith Small Schools girls defeated our girls 6-2. It was then up to the results of the mixed doubles, Barellan needing to win one of the matches to secure victory. Jake and Paige teamed up but were unfortunately defeated 2-6, leaving the sibling combination of Norm and Jane Haeusler to battle it out. After many long rallies in a high quality game of tennis, Norm and Jane were successful, winning 6-2 to become Riverina Champions and secure our place in the quarter finals.

Both teams are to be congratulated on their performance and excellent display of sportsmanship. I am very proud of the Barellan students and their dedication to tennis, including hours spent practising both in school sport time and in their own time. Thank you to Tina Haeusler, Cathy Bourchier and Alan Hesketh for their continued help and support!

We will now play Parkes Public School in the quarter finals early next term at a venue to be decided!

(Team manager)
Once upon a time there was black, pink, and white penguin named Looi. Looi lived in a big beachy zoo. He was chubby around the edges, but also muscular. He had three orange hairs sticking out the top of his head, glistening blue eyes and a small pucked up mouth like a dogs bottom. He also had scungies, humongous, pink, sparkly, frilly disco scungies. He had big elf ears and two, (pink and black) oversized webbed feet.

One scorching hot day Looi decided to go on a holiday to the beautiful, sunny, golden Pacific coast in Goolasondon. So Looi packed his bags. He went over what he had packed to make sure he had not forgotten anything.

“So I have got my sparkly swimmers, my dark pink snorkels, my soft pink hairbrush, my glittery casino suit, bumble bee sunglasses and my everyday clothes”. Smack! Looi shut his pink suitcase, put the pins into the clips and picked it up and headed off on his way out. He then grabbed his dull hat with a pink funnel around the top and slammed the door as he went out.

“Oh I forgot, I need money,” Looi exclaimed. He walked back into his house and went over to his safe. He silently entered the code and there it was $50,000.00 bucks. Looi grabbed a cool $10,000.00, and closed the safe, “Nick nock nick nock,” the only sound to be heard, as Looi secured the safe once more.

“Off I go again!” exclaimed Looi. Looi shoved the $10,000.00 into his small pink wallet.

“Limo,” yelled Looi. A bright pink limousine arrived right in the middle of the road and he walked up to it. The limo shone brightly in the glimmering sun, which made it look like it was coated with tiny diamonds. Looi jumped in and said to the driver, “Airport thanks Sir. I need to be there at 5 o’clock sharp. Please step on it.”

The limo spun off and arrived on time. Out jumped Looi as he gave a loud “Thankyou,” to the driver.

As Looi walked through the two big sliding doors of the airport, he felt like he was being stalked. Two enormous body guards kept a close eye on him as he headed for the check-in counter of the Qualten airlines.

“One ticket to Goolasondon please,” said Looi. “That will be $272 thank you,” said the delightful lady at the counter. Looi got his pink wallet out, yanked out the $272 and handed it to the lady in disgust.

“Thank you, and here is your ticket”. Looi snatched the tickets from her hand and walked away feeling guilty.

“Calling departures for Goolasondon,” came over the loud speaker. “That’s me,” said Looi. The two body guards took a step forward then walked over even closer.

Looi walked peacefully up to a blonde haired women standing behind an old brown wooden desk. He handed her the three white tickets, which she tore the tops off - Looi hated hearing the sound of the paper tearing, it reminded him of nails running down a chalk board.

“Enjoy your flight,” said the lady behind the desk. “Thanks,” Looi replied. “It gives me the creeps when I walk through these things!”

As he continued to walk through the tunnel, he shivered. Looi stepped from the grey tunnel into the plane.

“Yes!” he exclaimed, “First class.” He looked around and to his delight he saw creamy white walls, bottles of champagne and spongy white soft seats. Looi sat down in his allocated seat. “Ah, that feels good,” he said.

A waitress turned up and asked him if he would like a glass of champagne. Looi nodded and the waitress popped the cork off the top of the bottle, white fountains of bubbles poured over. It was definitely time for a celebration of a good holiday!

The flight went well and before Looi knew it the captain made an announcement, “We will be descending in three minutes, so could you take your seats and put your phones in airplane mode.”

Looi got his iPhone out and had two missed calls from Allie. Allie was Looi’s sister, she was very pretty. She had long curly blonde hair, sparkly blue eyes, she was really fit and had big, red luscious lips. Looi quietly text Allie back and wrote, “I will call you in about five minutes, we will be landing soon.

Once Looi got off the plane he called Allie immediately.

“Hey Allie, how are you?” he said.

“Hi Looi, I am very good thank you.”

“Just thought I would remind you that Carols wedding is on tomorrow at 6.30pm,” Allie replied.

“Oh shivers, I completely forgot about that. I am in Goolasondon on holidays. I just arrived here,” Looi announced.

“How long does it take to get back here if you leave on the next available flight?” asked Allie.

“It would take about eighteen hours,” said Looi.

“That is great, then you will make it back in time if you leave now,” Allie said with great excitement.

“I will try and get a flight, so will see you later,” Looi replied.

“Ok see ya,” Allie responded with a happy voice.

He quickly got his bags together and rushed to a bright green neon room. “Is this Qualten airlines?” Looi wondered to himself. He asked a body guard who was able to tell him that he was at the right place. Looi went up to the counter and asked what time the next flight was back to Seldon. Four o’clock was then next departure time, that was three hours away.

“That is the first available flight,” the lady said.

“I need a flight in an hour” Looi pleaded. “Sorry, we can’t get you on a plane any sooner, but if there is any change then we will let you know”, the lady told Looi. (Two hours later) “Sir” yelled a voice in the distance. “There has been a change in flight plans. We can get you on a plane in five minutes,” she announced.

Looi jumped up, grabbed his bags, and quickly ran to change his tickets, he handed over $721 to pay for the flights in his pink wallet. He then ran to the lady that was nicely dressed and taking the flight tickets, he handed the ticket to her, she then tore off the top and Looi proceeded to make his way to the plane. (18 hours later) Looi just arrived at Seldon. “Shivers, it is 5.15pm and I haven’t got much time to get to Carols wedding,” Looi said out loud, talking to himself.

Looi quickly drove back to the zoo as fast as he could, he got dressed, and managed to arrive just in time for Carols wedding. He sat down next to Allie, she smiled at him and asked, “How was your trip?”
Looi laughed, “Time sure flies when you are having fun!”

How the Tasmanian Tiger got its stripes!

One day a Tasmanian Tiger got lost in the forest. He kept walking in the forest until he saw a little stick house. He knocked on the door, opened it and went inside. He saw an Aboriginal sitting in his chair asleep, the Tasmanian Tiger roared and the Aboriginal woke up with a fright and knocked the black ink over. The ink went all over the Tasmanian Tiger putting black stripes all over him.
And that’s how the Tasmanian Tiger got its stripes!

How the Echidna got its spikes?

One afternoon in the middle of Victoria up in the hills that were surrounded by thick green bush, Mr Clumsy the echidna was going out to look for food, but an aboriginal was looking for some bush tucker too. The aboriginal looked at the echidna and saw an opportunity to get some tucker. The echidna started running, so the aboriginal chased him. The echidna came up to a cliff but could not stop in time. The echidna fell off the cliff and turned onto his back and fell into a bush.
Unfortunately the echidna got sticks stuck in his back. The aboriginal decided to leave the echidna and go back to camp.

Overnight the echidna called out to his fellow echidnas to come help. By morning the echidnas came and chewed most of the sticks off his back. When he mated the little echidnas were born with spikes on their back too.
That’s how the echidna got it’s spikes.

How the Tasmanian Tiger got its stripes!

Long, long ago there was a Tasmanian Tiger who was always getting teased by the Tasmanian Devils. One day a small bird named Lill helped Lulu the Tasmanian Tiger and they became friends. But Smelly, Elly, Belly and Gelly were very very upset because they were jealous of Lills new friend so they attacked Lulu with their claws and left scratch marks like stripes all over her.

How the Kangaroo got its tail!

One day Skippy and Lightning were playing. Lightning was fast and good at fighting other kangaroos, but would lose his temper easily (so watch out next time you’re walking in the bush). Skippy was smart and also fast and good at fighting. Their mothers always told them not to play with sticks but they didn’t listen. Skippy threw a stick at lightning which got stuck on his bottom. Lightning being short-tempered retaliated and threw his back at Skip which got stuck.
Now that had both got each other, they became friends again and like all good friends do – they apologised and lived happily ever after with their tails.
And that’s how the kangaroo got its tail!

How the Emu got its long neck.

One day the emu, snake and kangaroo were playing a game of stuck in the mud. Kangaroo was in. The kangaroo caught the emu so the emu had to stand there with its legs apart. The emu got stuck in the mud. The snake wrapped itself around the emu’s neck to try and pull him out, but the snake accidentally stretched the emu’s neck. The emu now had a very long neck. With a long neck the emu could reach a branch on the tree and pull himself out.
And that’s how the emu got its long neck!

Why Kangaroos hop.

One day Mr Roo was walking in the country when all of a sudden he stepped on his friend Mr Spikes (the echidna). Mr Roo yelped in pain. He cried and cried all day long until wise old crow said ‘Stop walking and try hopping!’ So Mr Roo started to hop and he never felt pain again.

That is why kangaroo now hop!

How the rainbow got its colours!

One day sun and clouds was relaxing in the sky. Sun said to cloud ‘What’s wrong?’

Cloud said ‘I have no friends’.

‘I will be your friend’, sun replied.

Cloud was so happy that the sun wanted to be his friend that he began to cry which made it rain. The sun shone through the drips of rain which made different colours in a semi-circle. They decided to call this a rainbow and they lived happily ever after.

How the Peacock got its Colourful Feathers

In the deep, dark rainforest of Australia lived Perry the Peacock, Timmy the Turtle and Sam the Snake. They have been friends and have lived together since they first met each other. Sam was the one who loved to slither, Timmy was the one who loved to paint and Perry was the one who just wanted to play. The only reason that they were together and were friends was because they knew nobody but each other. Their favourite spot in the rainforest was next to the waterfall because they thought the sound of splashing water was relaxing and calming. It was a quiet spot as well.

One day while Timmy was making a magnificent painting of a colourful pattern, while Perry and Sam were chasing each other. Timmy had almost finished his painting but Perry and Sam didn’t notice how close they were getting to it. Unfortunately, Sam slithered under the painting rack, but because Perry wasn’t small enough, he suddenly realised that he was about to hit the painting, he couldn’t slow down. SLAM!!! Perry crashed into the wet painting and found himself smothered with paint, especially his feathers. Timmy’s pattern printed the same onto Perry’s feathers. Although Perry had ran into a painting at a hundred kilometres an hour and had paint all over him, he didn’t mind the colour on his feathers, he thought it looked awesome. The paint on the feathers dried. From that day on the colourful feathers were normal on the peacock.

And that is how the peacock got its colourful feathers!

Year 9/10 Work Experience

Year 10 have just completed a week of work experience and while their choices of occupations were varied their recollections are all very similar, that is they had a great time.

Below is a selection of their summaries of their week...

In Week 9 of Term 2 I went to KU Kangaroo Preschool in Kooringal, Wagga Wagga. It is a Preschool for four to five year olds. Occasionally there are three year olds who attend. There were some very big minded children at the centre. Most of the time I had children hanging off me, but I didn’t actually mind. The highlight of my week was when 2 boys were having an argument and one said to the other it is not a triangle X and X replied “my name is not X, it is Batman” and walked off. I would now consider doing Preschool teaching as a career and the Coordinator at the Preschool recommended that I do.

Jess Forrester

I went to work experience at ‘Workout Wagga Wagga’. I was able to experience many varied gym classes, such as spin class, pilates, weights and circuits. As my week progressed, I realised that working in a gym isn’t all about classes as there is a lot of cleaning involved, which I generally did. I enjoyed my time thoroughly. The team at ‘Workout Wagga Wagga’ made me feel included and a part of their team. Overall I had an amazing time, I learnt a lot, cleaned even more and worked out even more than that.

Sophie Litchfield

I completed my week of work experience at Ardlethan Central School, working with K/1/2. It was actually really good. I would probably consider being a Kindergarten teacher. It was great fun.

Kailey Nau.

I went to S & J timber and joinery. I was able to help in the construction and installation of various kitchens. I had a great week and would definitely consider this as a career.

Ben Carmichael, Gary Boswell and Hamish Gaynor one each. Special praise must go to every player who gave their all, right up to the final siren. We now look forward to our next game.
